

January 30, 2017 | Great White Studio Update

Calling from the Nashville, Tenn., based studio, WireWorld, of legendary producer Michael Wagener, Great White is pleased to report that 2017 is kicking off as planned for the classic rockers.

"We're jelling with Michael (Wagener) and the tracks are really hitting their stride," Mark Kendall said. "We haven't worked with Michael since our debut EP in 1984. There's a bit of a nostalgia in the air, but we're focused on churning out material for our fans that catapults Great White to a newer sound. We have a healthy amount of songs to choose, and the vibe is so positive."

Great White anticipates the yet-to-be named album to hit this summer. Stay tuned for the latest Great White news and don't miss them on tour this year. Visit the tour dates here. Fans are also highly encouraged to post and share photos on the band's social media channels - the band does in fact read and participate!